(Sunday is optional - practical dowsing at Belas Knap Long Barrow)

THE SPEAKERS

Sig Lonegren - Ancient Holland

The Netherlands is surprisingly rich in ancient sacred sites from long low tunnels of "dolmens" called "Hunebedden", or Giants' Beds, classic Bronze Age round barrows, mounds that are truncated cones that look like miniature Silbury Hills, to "Doodwegen", straight paths (read leys) that lead from different surrounding towns to a cemetery in the middle and many more.

Sig is well known to many of us within the EEG and is an Honorary Life Vice President of the BSD, his subject matter will be new to many of us and his wealth of dowsing knowledge will ensure a very interesting talk.

Liz Poraj-Wilczynska - Sensing the Past

Belas Knap long barrow is the focus of this talk; Liz has spent three years investigating the monument and the ancient landscape around it. Using intuition, dowsing and sensory archaeology Liz has uncovered many different reasons why the barrow builders chose to build a home for their ancestors in this location. Animal tracks, underground water, folklore and ancient burial rites are just some of the topics explored in this ground breaking research project. Liz will lead the optional day on Sunday.

Alan Neal - The Power of the Land and of Us

There are places in the landscape where we are uplifted and at our best, but in others we feel a distinct discomfort, even foreboding. A casual glance would reveal nothing amiss, yet our intuition tells us a very different story. Far from being exclusive to humanity, these seemingly inexplicable reactions are common to all life forms: animals, birds, plants, trees, insects, each one with its own specific likes and dislikes. What triggers such clear yet intangible messages, and how as dowsers are we able to deal with them?

Tony Talmage - Dowsing & the Quantum Connection

Some suggest that quantum entanglement is how dowsing works. The hair, spot of blood, gemstone, oil, water or other witnesses used by a dowser connect through a unique resonance to its parent. It is this resonance which is picked up by the finely-tuned antenna of the dowser. Thus the weird world of the Quantum Field offers a scientific explanation for the weird world of the geomancer.

Tony plunges us deeper into the Quantum 'Twilight Zone' suggesting that we dowsers actually create reality. In fact we are co-creators of the universe. As distinguished Nobel Prize winning American Physicist Richard Feynman once told a gathering of top scientists:

'If you think you understand quantum mechanics, you don't!'
